

Server: What can I get for you today?

Nana: I'll have the lasagna.

Server: Sorry, lasagna's finished today.

Nana: Oh. Do you still have spaghetti?

Server: Yes, we do. What kind of sauce would you like? We have carbonara, marinara and Bolognese.

Nana: I'll try the marinara.

Server: Good choice. Here you go. If you want some parmesan cheese, it's beside the ketchup and napkins. Would you like any meatballs or soup with that?

Nana: No thanks.

Server: Anything else?

Nana: Can I get a salad with no onions and dressing on the side, please?

Server: Well, I can put the dressing on the side, but the onions are already mixed together with the other vegetables. Is that all right?

Nana: That's fine.

Server: OK. Here's your salad. Will that be all?

Nana: Do you have any apple juice?

Server: I'm not sure if we have apple juice, but drinks and coffee are self-serve from the machine by the cash register. And if you want any dessert, they're in the glass case right over there.

Nana: Great. Thanks!
